"Trilly" is drawing many patrons to Poll's theater this week. It is a play that never fails to attract, as it has gripping interest, and the themo-and plot is so widely different than most plays, it readily commands ad-miration. In the production the mem-bers of the company are at their best, each and every character receiving the proper interpretation. At the perform-ance last night many curtain calls were necessary to satisfy the enthusi-calls and every character and an extra continuous. were necessary to sausive to entitude astic audience. Miss Victoria Montgomery and Roger Parker, the leading man, particularly came in for praise on all sides. The dancing of Miss Fay Baker is quite a feature. She is a clever little actress and as a dancer she is on a par with the best of them. Next week the company will be seen in that whole-souled, rollloiding farce, "Hello, Bill." It is one of the brightest comedies of the day and is sure to be most favorably received.

BREED THEATER.

The Desert Claim, Thrilling Western Drama.

The bill at the Breed for today is a The bill at the Breed for today is a varied one, and contains as its head-liner the great story of the American deaert, entitled The Degert Claim. The story tells of Jfin Lee, an old prospector, after some years working a rather measure claim in the desert, striking a rich vein of gold. Staking bis claim, Jim takes specimens of his ore to town and shows them to various friends at Bud Bailey's saloon. Two strange prospectors plan to get the mine and getting Jim intoxicated, they easily learn the location. The next night Jim sees them prowling d near his tent and suspects foul. He plans a trap to catch them, and after they are trapped ties them together and leaves them helpless in the desert. They are nearly dead with thirst when Lee relents and, turning them loose, orders them out of the

A beautiful Biograph drama entitled Sunshine Through the Dark graces the bill also, and is a strong story that appeals to the higher sensitellities in man, and wins his admiration purely through the delightfully human story and charming characters.

A Romance of the 60's is the Lubin film story, and as usual is one of the "clear as a bell" variety. It contains among its many other features the careful and correct delignation of Sunshine Through the Dark graces the bill also, and is a strong story that apcareful and correct delineation of Abraham Lincoln in a superb part, and all is a war drama of the first-class, and spiendidly thrilling and in-

SEED DISPERSION

Subject of President Seng's Paper at Meeting of Waterbury Naturalist

Another among the world's won-ers "Seed Dispersion"—was treated of in an article read by President F. Henry Seng at the last meeting of the Naturalist club, Seeds, he of the Naturalist club, Seeds, he said, were the perpetuators of vegetable life, without which animal life would be impossible. The prodigality of nature makes generous provisions for perpetuation of every species of plant life. The catnip plant is said to bear from 40,000 to 60,000 seeds, and bear from 40,000 to 60,000 seeds, and a large part of the purslane bears L. 250,000 seeds. Among nature's wonderful forms of seeds is the American tumble weed, a curious form of seed. This mass of white balls, four feet in diameter, forms an immense column of whiteness, driven by western gales. Nature provides countless devices for the dispersion of seeds, among the agencies being tempests and zephyrs, rivers, brooks and oceans. and zephyrs, rivers, brooks and oceans snow and ice, beast, bird and In the animated discussion which followed President Seng's presenta-tion of the subject emphasis was placed on the value of seed as food unchangeableness of types of plants,-Waterbury American

THE WANDERING SCOTT

Are you not weary in your distant pinces.
Far, far from Scotland of the mist and storm.
In staguant airs, the sun-smite on your faces,
The days so long and warm?
When all around you lie the strange fields sleeping.
The ghastly woods where no dear memories roam.
Do not your sad hearts over seas come leaping

To the highlands and the lowlands of your home? We wander where the little gray towns Deep in the hills or selvedging the By farmlands lone, by woods where wild fewl muster To shelter from the day's inciemen-

And right will come, and then far through the darkling A light will shine out in the sound-ing glen. And it will mind us of some fond eyes aparkling, And we'll be happy then.

Let torrents pour then, let the great winds rally.
Snow-stience fall or lightning blast the pine,
That light of home shines warmly in the valley,
And, exiled son of Scotland, it is thine.
Far have you wandered over seas of longing.
And now you drowse, and now you well may weep.
When all the recollections come athronging,
Of this rude country where your fathers sleep.

They sleep, but still the hearth is warmly glowing.
While the wild winter blusters round their land;
That light of home, the wind so bitter blowing—
Look, look and listen, do you understand? Love, strength and tempest—Oh, come back and share them!
Here is the cottage, here the open door;
We have the hearts, although we do not bare them—
They're yours, and you are ours for evermore.

To meet the home demand for bever-To meet the home demand for beverage wines, France has, since the first invasion of phylioxers, been gradually converting the colony of Algeria into one vast vineyard, and so successful lave been these efforts that for some years past enormous quantities of well fermented red and white wines, which have now reached nearly 200,000,000 gallons are annually shipped to France. Algeria, therefore, provides the French people with about onelifth of their total consumption of wine and, being a Franch colony, the wineis admitted into France free of duty.
